

No sign means alone.

Nor any finding, any field, any person. Meaning arises in connection.

A syntagm is the ordered combination of signs along an axis. Transposed to research: findings in relation.

Not another discipline — a different way of working: across the boundaries, openly accessible, carried together.

Apart, everything is absurd.

Connected, it makes sense.

Research is widely enclosed.

- Behind paywalls, in disciplinary silos, bound to proprietary systems.
- Whoever sets categories and access keeps the interpretive power.
- Benefit and consequence-load come apart.

Free, public, transdisciplinary research.

- Free & public

Open access, open source. Whoever researches, shares.

- No discipline has the last word

Humanities, art, medicine, technology in relation.

- Sovereign, no arms

Own, portable means; a hard ethical limit.

Question → relation → discourse.

Refer findings from different fields to the same question, hold the relations in a knotenwerk — and take dissent as method. No authority replaces re-examination.

Eight documents, one axis.

Statement · manifesto · stance & discourse · statement of principles · concept sketch · thesis paper · system paper · platform paper — all v0.x, openly licensed, open for discussion. The loop runs over the order itself.

All documents under Material →

Carried by participation.

- Give research input

A question, a finding, an objection.

- Spread it

Use freely, translate, build on it.

- Contribute to the corpus

Openly via a repository.

Origin or title do not decide — the argument decides.

From private to independent.

- Today under private stewardship — set up for spin-out.
- Community first, then the body: a non-profit association.
- Identity and channels belong to Syntagma — so separation stays clean.
